AN INFORMAL DATE by Heather GrayKimi sells coffee at a hospital kiosk and has a smile for everyone who comes her way. Owen is a research scientist with limited people skills and a fondness for caffeine. How can two such different people go from a shared interest in beverages to a shared future?

OPERATION BACK-TO-SCHOOL by Elizabeth MaddreyWith both her girls in school Shannon Cross is looking forward to being back in the office. But how can Shannon fall for her daughter's teacher without feeling that she's betraying her deceased husband's memory?

A (SORTA) SOUTHERN SERENADE by Krista PhillipsThey sing two very different tunes. Can they work together to make a joyful melody?

LEARNING FROM EXPERIENCE by Ginger SolomonAn old man and his will change everything for Lexi Ross. Can she survive the memories and learn from someone else's experience or will she choose to make her own path?

THE OTHER BROTHER by Carole TowrissMarc has contentedly spent his life in his brother's shadow until he meets Kendall. Can she convince him he's special, when no one else thinks so? And can he convince her she's already found what she's searching for?

A HERO FOR HEATHER by Marion UeckermannPaxton Rathbone is desperate to make his way home. He has grown too accustomed to the disdain of mankind, which perhaps is why Heather Blume's kindness penetrates his reserves. But there's more to Heather's actions than merely being the Good Samaritan she has no doubt he's a gentleman fallen far from grace.

Customer Reviews

Falling for you! I received this box set in exchange for a honest review, all the stories are very good. I really enjoyed them and definitely recommend them. I also bought a copy. An informal date by Heather Gray The characters are so real. Love the story of Owen and Kimi, so different but make a good couple. Everyone will definitely love this story. Operation back to school by Elizabeth Maddrey She is widow with two young daughters, he is a kindergarten teacher and one of her daughters in his class. There is attraction but can they make it work? I love stories with kids in it, I really loved their characters. Fraiser and Shannon story is a very special one. A (sorta) Southern Serenade by Krista Phillips Kendra and Josh start out with a big misunderstanding when he is there to work on her lawn. She visits his church but does not know he goes there. Will they be able to work things out? Read and see. Learning from experience by Ginger Solomon Loved Nathan and Alexandra story, the story starts five years in the past. A misunderstanding with Nathan father. He then asks for forgiveness from Alexandra right before he passes. After he dies, then comes the "will" and things gets interesting. This is my first book by Ginger and I loved it. The Other Brother by Carole Towriss Marc and Kendall meet when his brother and sister in law is in a car accident. His sister in law is pregnant and Kendall works in the baby ward at the hospital, the ones that are premature. I really loved this story by Carole, the first book I have read by her, I have found another good author. A hero for Heather by Marion Uechermann She works for a homeless daycare, he is homeless but actually has a family that is missing him. Love the characters, a very inspiring story.

This is an incredibly sweet boxed set of Christian inspirational romance stories. Part of the title says that they are heart-warming and they surely are! Although I only knew 2 of the authors, I will definitely read more of ALL these authors' books. An Informal Date by Heather Gray is about the unlikely romance between 2 opposites - a rule-follower & a rule-breaker. I loved her quote: "God's got my back even when I forget how much He cares." The 2nd sweet novel, Operation Back-To-School by Elizabeth Maddrey, is another heart-warming story about a widow struggling with feeling free to love again. The 3rd story, A (Sorta) Southern Serenade by Krista Phillips, has a rich Yankee heiress and a Southern hard-working landscaper, who discover that there is more to them than "how they earn a paycheck" as they learn to look past first impressions. The 4th story, Learning From Experience by Ginger Solomon, so accurately portrays how God wants us not "to come to Him out of pity or some misguided obligation," but wants our heart. And I loved her quote: "He filled the empty places I knew I had but couldn't name." In the 5th story, The Other Brother by Carole Towriss, Marc Hudson doesn't realize that he really is special too, because of being shadowed by his brother's sports fame. As a result of his brother dying in a car accident, he meets & falls in love with the RN Kendall Thornton who is taking care of his widowed sister-in-law and preemie nephew in the hospital. The 6th, A Hero For Heather by Marion Ueckermann, is a sweet rendition of The Prodigal Son, and how appearances aren't always what they seem to be. This is a GREAT collection by wonderful authors! I received an ARC copy for my honest review.

I was interested in this collection of stories because it contained works by some of my favorite authors such as Heather Gray, Elizabeth Maddrey, and Marion Ueckermann. I was pleasantly surprised at how much I enjoyed reading works by the other authors who were new to me. These stories were each very different but oh so enjoyable, like little bites of chocolate to be savored and lingered over. A (Sorta) Southern Serenade and The Other Brother were two of my favorites. I love the sweet tender moments, the joy of falling in love, and the great lines such as: "The lamest bright side in the history of silver linings." Overall an enjoyable set of inspiring, clean stories to brighten your day.*I received an ARC for an honest review.

Six talented romance writers collaborated on a fall themed boxed set. Characters from various walks of life interacted and discovered the love of God, the love of others, and romance. Each novella has a descriptive setting, developing characters, and twist and turn plot. As a retired school teacher, I identified with Operation Back-to-School by Elizabeth Maddrey. As a coffee drinker, I enjoyed reading An Informal Date by Heather Gray. A (Sorta) Southern Serenade by Krista Phillips inspired my musical side. The love of flowers and the story of the Good Samaritan were the highlight of A Hero For Heather by Marion Ueckermann. Learning From Experience by Ginger Solomon visualized the artistic side. The Other Brother by Carole Towriss brought me to tears. Thanks to the authors for romances that warm the heart.

I have gotten into the habit of getting box sets, either free or for $99. I have found some fantastic stories and authors this way. This book is one of the best. I didn't give it five stars because there are several misuses of punctuation and the use of wrong tenses. Also, one mistake I cannot accept is the use of the wrong word when using one with alternate spellings, i.e. there, their, and they're. This is but one example. Otherwise, the stories in this set are great. All six authors are to be commended for their contributions. I couldn't put my Kindle down for long without hurrying back to finish the story I was currently reading. I finished this box set in less than twelve hours including a little sleep time included in that time. If you want good clean Christian based reading, this box set is for you.
