This is a great companion to Max Hodges Kana and Kanji Flash Card sets. The intro and disclaimer is in English, obviously, because it's mostly beginners using this. The rest is in Japanese, which it's supposed to be. So it will take you a couple of tries to understand what the speaker is saying in the beginning. With a little common sense, you should be able to figure it out. You must listen to it carefully and say the word out loud several times. Practice makes perfect. Practice, Practice, Practice and stop complaining. There is no easy way. Once you accept this, things will move along smoothly. Thanksp.s. I recommend downloading it directly from the White Rabbit Press site. That way, it'll be readily available and you won't have to wait for it to come in the mail. It's probably cheaper too. You'll also be saving on shipping as well as materials that would take to create, pack, and ship it. Point for being eco-friendly!

I have been studying Japanese for almost 2 years now. I bought this when I began my studies before taking a Japanese class and woah did this give me a jumpstart over my classmates. Your first course in Japanese you'll spend half of your time learning hiragana and katakana as you get away from romaji. Romaji is so bad for pronunciation, Japanese is very syllabic and as you practice and learn the kana alphabets you pick up on that. Plus the pictures help you visualize this. Study tip though for these, I would go through each card, and write the romaji out, if I messed the card up, it would go in the pile to learn again, and if I got it right I wouldn't study it again until finishing up the stack of the wrong pile. Using that technique, I learned both kana alphabets in a month. Given that, it will take time for you to read fast, just like when you were 5 and learning English. That comes with practice and repetition, though after a while just seeing it all the time in future studies, tv, manga, video games etc will reinforce it with little to no effort of your own. Good luck, definitely worth it. I also use their kanji cards too, and those are very nice. Also, Anki a free program out there is a very good flashcard program to use for the kana as well as vocabulary that you have.

Together with the "Kana Flashcards" this is what you really need if you want to start learning the Japanese language! It provides you high quality spoken Japanese words (vocabulary) --- that you can read and see on the Flashcards ... Don't miss this! And this product also exceeded my expectations!
