Albert Einstein said, "We cannot solve our problems with the same level of thinking that created them". If you want to achieve more in life and work, you will need to approach solving the issues with a different mindset. You will need to Reframe " to shift your approach. Intellectually, most people recognize this truth. But our culture has taught us to conform, to think and act within certain guidelines. What we need is a new approach, a guide to take us from the theory of reframing to the actual process. Mona Patel, author of Reframe: Shift the Way You Work, Innovate and Think, has written a book that guides the reader through the process of reframing. One of the first blocks to becoming more creative is to recognize and examine the excuses we use to keep us stuck. Ms. Patel has identified 8 excuses personas " The Brat; The Bullied; The Blamer; The Bottleneck; The Sheep; The Slacker, The Square; and The Scaffolder.
